Consistency between target market and the product

This product is likely to be consistent with the likely objectives, needs and financial situation of the class of consumers in the target market.

This is based on an assessment of the key attributes, features and terms of the product, including its design with the identified needs and objectives of the class of consumers in mind.

For example, given the product has been designed for consumers who want a no interest loan to pay for their sustainable product purchase made under the Tas Energy Savers Loan Scheme with the certainty of no interest or fees and fixed repayments, as well as the ability to self-serve their account online, the product design enables this form of repayment schedule and access.

Adequacy of distribution conditions and restrictions

We have concluded that the distribution conditions and restrictions will make it likely that a consumer who acquires the product will be in the class of consumers for which it has been designed.

This is based on an assessment of the distribution conditions and the appropriateness of them to assist distribution being targeted towards the class of consumers within the target market. The Eligibility Criteria enables distributors to ask 'knock out' questions to determine if a consumer meets the Eligibility Requirements of the product.

Additionally, the requirement of authorised mere referrers to be accredited and trained with Brighte, only use approved marketing or promotional materials and continue to meet the TAS ESLS participant guidelines is considered adequate in supporting the distribution of the product in accordance with the objectives, financial situation and needs of the class of consumers outlined above.

All applications, regardless of distribution channel, are made via Brighte application systems, which seek and require a certain amount of information to establish whether the consumer meets the Eligibility Requirements. This information is assessed against the credit assessment criteria prior to approval to determine if the consumer falls within the target market prior to being issued.
